Letters to The Editor

Fury Over Thames Toll Charges

Dear Sir/Madam,

I wish to bring to the attention of the readers of your newspaper the problems I encounter during my daily journey to work from Brentwood in Essex to Dartford in Kent. This is only a distance of fifteen miles but the issue of course is the fact that I have to use the M25, one of the busiest orbital Motorways in the UK (if not the world!) followed by crossing the River Thames using the Queen Elizabeth II toll suspension bridge.

My journey to work every morning is a nightmare! On a good day, it takes at least thirty minutes to travel the fifteen miles, an average speed of thirty miles per hour. On a really bad day, the journey can take up to four hours which is an average speed of approximately four miles per hour. I could just as well still be living in Victorian times when motorized vehicles had to follow a man carrying a red flag warning of the imminent danger of an approaching motor vehicle!

The worst journeys occur when the toll bridge crossing suffers from major congestion caused either by a road traffic accident or high winds when the bridge can be closed altogether. On days like these, I might as well just turn round (if you could actually manage to do that on the motorway!) and go home. Fortunately, on most days, the traffic travels smoothly but at an alarmingly slow pace. The problem of course is having to pay a toll to cross the bridge.

Travelling from Brentwood, which is north of the bridge, the traffic slows right down even before the bridge comes into sight. You then have to crawl in first or second gear for what seems an eternity until you approach the toll booths. Now in this day and age, you'd think you could just show your credit card and be waved through – but no! They want cash, admittedly you can pay in Euros if you have forgotten your English money. But cash it is! So, the poor motorist has to squeeze his hand into his trouser pocket (or her handbag) to find £1.50 (soon to rise to £2) each time they cross. People who cross regularly know to have the correct money ready. However, many people are making an occasional visit to the channel port of Dover, in order to holiday on the continent and are not prepared for this archaic payment system. Hence, virtually everyone is stationary at the toll booth for up to two minutes resulting in huge queues.

My solution is simple. Remove the toll booths and let the traffic flow freely. The government has already made millions of pounds out of this bridge and should, from now on, let everyone use it for free.

Yours,

Angry Driver

Attempt all the questions.

Q.N. 1. Read the following passage and do the activities that follow.

In a village in the East, there lived an old couple. They did not have any children and never spent an extra paisa on themselves. They never repaired their house or cooked good food. One day, a family moved into the village. It was their son's second birthday and they sent two delicious laddoos to the old couple. The couple ate the laddoos with great relish. For days after they could talk of nothing else. Finally, the old man could take it no more. He said to his wife, "Let's buy the ingredients to make just two laddoos." His wife agreed but said, "If I make the laddoos at home, the neighbours will know and will want a share. Let's cook in the woods behind our hut. That way no one will ever know."

The next day the old man purchased the ingredients from the market and they set off to the woods. Having never prepared food like this before, they ended up with three laddoos instead of two. The old couple returned home with the sweets, dying to eat them. But there was a problem. "It was my idea and I went to the market, so I ought to get two," said the old man. But his wife refused to give in so easily and said, "Since I prepared the sweets, I ought to have two." The day passed and the argument continued.

At last, the old man suggested, "Let us not talk to each other. Whoever breaks the silence first will get one laddoo and the other person two." His wife agreed. Hours passed, but neither of them spoke and finally they fell asleep with the bowl of sweets between them. That evening one of the neighbours knocked on the door but the couple did not answer for fear of losing the bet. Peering through the window, the man saw the couple lying on the floor with an untouched bowl of food. "They are dead!" He shouted and alerted the other villagers. Soon the door was broken down and the house was swarming with villagers. They discussed everything from the funeral to where the couple had hidden their wealth. But the couple lay still without a word.

Finally, the villagers carried them to the cremation ground. As the flames licked his feet, the old man jumped up screaming "You win!" His wife jumped up too, happy that she had won. The two then rushed home leaving the bewildered villagers present there behind. But when they got home.... Alas the door had been left open and they found a stray dog licking the last crumbs of the sweets from the bowl.

[5×1=5]

A. Answer the following questions:

- Why did they cook the laddoos in the woods behind the hut?
- What did the old couple argue about?
- What agreement did they make about the extra laddoo?
- Why did not they say that they were alive to the villagers?
- Why did the old man scream?

[5×1=5]

B. Put the following sentences in correct order.

Attempt all the questions.

1. Read the following passage and do the activities that follow. [15]

In a village in the mountains of Ethiopia, a young man and a young woman fell in love and became husband and wife. For a short while they were perfectly happy, but then trouble entered their house. They began to find fault with each other over little things – he blamed her for spending too much at the market, or she criticized him for always being late. It seemed not a day passed without some kind of quarrel about money or friends or household chores.

Sometimes they grew so angry they shouted at each other and yelled bitter curses and then went to bed without speaking, but that only made things worse. After a few months, when she thought she could stand it no longer, the young wife went to a wise old judge to ask for a divorce.

"Why?" asked the old man. "You've been married barely a year. Don't you love your husband?"

"Yes, we love each other. But it's just not working out."

"What do you mean, not working out?"

"We fight a lot. He does things that bother me. He leaves his clothes lying around the house. He drops his toenail clippings on the floor. He stays out too late. When I want to do one thing, he wants to do another. We just can't live together."

"I see," said the old man. "Perhaps I can help you. I know of a magic medicine that will make the two of you get along much better. If I give it to you, will you put aside these thoughts of divorce?"

"Yes!" cried the woman. "Give it to me."

"Wait," replied the judge. "To make the medicine, I must have a single hair from the tail of a fierce lion that lives down by the river. You must bring it to me."

"But how can I get such a hair?" cried the woman, "The lion will surely kill me."

"There I cannot help you," the old man shook his head. "I know much about making medicines but I know little of lions. You must discover a way yourself. Can you do it?"

The young wife thought long and hard. She loved her husband very much; the magic medicine might save their marriage. She resolved to get the hair, no matter what.

The very next morning she walked down to the river, hid behind some rocks, and waited. After a while, the lion came by to drink. When she saw his huge claws, she froze with fear. When he bared his sharp fangs, she nearly fainted. And when he gave his mighty roar, she turned and ran home.

But the next morning, she came back, this time carrying a sack of fresh meat. She set the food on the ground, two hundred yards from the lion, and then hid behind the rocks while the lion ate.

The next day, she set the meat down one hundred yards away from the lion. And on the following morning, she put the food only fifty yards away, and stood nearby while the lion gulped it down.

And so every day she drew closer and closer to the fierce, wild beast. After a while she stood near enough to throw him the food, and finally came the day when she fed him right from her hand! She trembled as she watched the great teeth rip and tearing the meat. But she loved her husband more than she feared the lion.

Closing her eyes, she reached out and pulled a single hair from the tail. Then she ran as fast as she could to the wise old judge. "Look," she cried. "I've brought the hair from the lion!"

The old man took the hair and looked at it closely. "This is a brave thing that you have done," he said. "It took a great deal of patience and resolve."

"Yes," said the woman. "Now give me the medicine to make my marriage better." The old man shook his head. "I have nothing else to give you."

"But you promised!" the young wife cried.

"Don't you see?" asked the old man gently. "I have already given you all the medicine you need. You were determined to do whatever it took, however long it took, to gain a magic remedy for your problems. But there is no magic remedy."

There is only your determination. You say you and your husband love each other. If you both give your marriage the same patience and resolve and courage you showed in getting this lion's hair, you will be happy together for a longer time. Think about it." And so the young woman went home with new resolution.

A. Answer the following questions.

- Where did the young man and woman live?
- Why did the young wife go to the judge?
- What did the judge ask the young wife to bring for the magic medicine?
- How did the young wife get closer to the lion?
- What did the young wife do after she got hair from the lion?

B. Choose the best options.

a) The young woman is frightened by all these except:

- The lion's claws.
- The lion's smell.
- The lion's teeth.
- The lion's roar.

b) The young woman goes to the river to:

- Watch the wild animals.
- Feed the lion.
- Be obedient to the judge.
- Pick a special medicine plant.
